Is Chivalry Dead?

Paul writes about a “great mystery” in Ephesians 5. He teaches that the church is Christ’s bride and that He selflessly gave Himself for her to keep her pure. Quite an image, right? Imagine a scene in which husband must lay down his own life so his bride could live. Classic romantic drama, right?

That metaphor, while powerful, is always a little difficult for us to wrap our heads around. So let’s simplify it a little. Gentlemen, how would you respond if you discovered someone was mistreating your wife? Maybe it was something that one coworker said to her. You feel a little upset for her, right? Let’s go further.

What if you found your wife had been beaten or abused? How would you respond if you found her romantically involved with someone else? Feel uncomfortable yet? You should.

Husbands (“if they’re up to snuff,” as my mamaw would say) should feel a guttural reaction when they find out their wives have been mistreated. We’re made with a built-in defense mechanism that moves us to protect those we love. That’s how Paul describes Jesus’ feelings toward the church. He loves her, He wants to serve her, and He will protect her at any cost.

So... how are we acting as Christ’s bride? Are we being faithful? Are we treating our fellow members with respect? Is this church representing Him well as people look at us? Will He be proud to call us His own when He returns?
