There is Joy in Christianity

Can people tell by the way that we live that we are Christians or must we tell them that we are – or should I say, claim to be? I once heard of a man who heard the truth for the first time and obeyed it. He could hardly wait until the next morning to share what he had learned with the man who worked right beside him. They had worked side by side for a number of years. When he began to talk with the man about what he had learned and obeyed, the man stopped him and said, “I have been a member of the church for thirty years.” Maybe he had, but was he a Christian? If so, the man who worked next to him for all those years, didn’t know it.

Jesus let us know that when we let our light shine, others will see our good works. We cannot keep our Christianity hidden. “Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works. And glorify your Father which is in heaven.” (Matthew 5:14-16)
