“Wherefore the anger of the Lord was kindled against Amaziah, and he sent unto him a prophet, which said unto him, Why hast thou sought after the gods of the people, which could not deliver their own people out of thine hand” (2 Chron 25:15).

While the Word of God is divine, it is chock-full of logic. The Lord “reasoned” with Judah (Isa 1:18). The Lord reasoned with Amaziah, 8th king of the southern kingdom. Amaziah decided to trust in the “gods” of Seir, whom he’d just slew. It is here that God addressed the absurdity of such a decision.

There is something about human nature that causes us to trust in our own reason rather than the perfect logic of God.

When we find ourselves on the verge of denying the perfect direction of God and turning to our own understanding, let us take to heart all the warnings against doing such (Prov 3:5; 14:12; 16:25).
