“So teach us to number our days, That we may apply our hearts unto wisdom” (Ps 90:12).

The older I get, the more I realize what “truly” matters in life. I have always had a disposition of “just roll with the punches” and “leave it better than you found it”, but the more “life” I live, I have strived to live by the mantra, “Don’t make mountains out of mole hills.”

At the end of this life, what will have truly mattered? How much money we made, how many possessions we amassed, how many buildings bear our names, how many accolades and worldly accomplishments we were able to achieve, how many people chant our names? Those things may be etched in the memory banks of men when our name is mentioned, but what will God remember about our lives here? What follows us into eternity is determined by whether we were godly parents, spouses, employees, employers, friends, and faithful Christians. Were our motives authentic and genuine? Were we benevolent without boasting and bragging? Did we take the high road when everyone went low? Did we apply our hearts to wisdom?

Lord, teach us to number our days!
