“But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour” (Lk 10:29)?

The parable of the Good Samaritan was prompted by a conversation Jesus had with a lawyer (an expert in the Law of Moses). When he asked Jesus what to do to inherit eternal life, Jesus asked him to recite the Law. The gentleman quoted Deuteronomy 6:5 and Leviticus 19:18 which referred to loving one’s neighbor as himself. Jesus agreed. The man, seeking to justify himself, asked Christ, “And who is my neighbor?”

Often efforts are made by churches and Christians to be involved in “mission” work and support “missionaries”. These are valiant and honorable works, but often it is to the detriment of local evangelism. Churches and Christians seem to find it easier to throw money at foreign labors than to evangelize their own “neighbors” (πλησίον – near, neighbor).

Let us not forget that the person on our jobs, living next door to us, at the grocery store, at the ball field, at the gym, or whomever is “near” also need the gospel as much as the person living thousands of miles away.
